so sorry

redacted email apologies by claire hentschker

2016

This generative book contains every apology I have made over email, with the context of the apology redacted.

After each email was added to the book, it was deleted from my email account, sorry

[REDACTED]

Sorry for falling off of the grid, I had to travel home to be with my family this weekend and it has caused me to fall behind on email. [REDACTED]

This book was made in Prof. Golan Levin's Interactive Art and Computational Design class in 2016. Emails were pulled by hand from two different gmail accounts of mine in order to assure no highly sensitive information was being copied over. The date, time and full content of the emails were stored in a JSON file. The code for redacting the body of the emails was written in p5JS. The redacted emails were laid out and the book was generated using Basil.JS for Adobe Indesign. p5JS is developed by Lauren MCarthy. Basil.JS is a project of the Interaction Seminar.

Special thanks to Golan Levin and the Studio for Creative Inquiry.

This generative book contains every apology I have made over email, with the context of the apology redacted.

After each email was added to the book, it was deleted from my email account, sorry
